MAÑIPŪRA KRIYĀ

This kriyā is for the strength of the center. All power radiates from there, From there you determine the way. It is the purifying fire of the center. Remember, the Mother venerates the seed of fire – the power behind all action – “Om Raṁ Ma”.

60 – 90 minutes

Samāsthiti

The equalized pose. First, come up in samāsthiti and consciously be silent. You are not just standing here, you are venerating your center with deep breathing and conscious silence. There is nothing to say, neither inwardly nor outwardly.

Then, when you breathe, do so through the navel. Imagine golden light gloriously emitting from your navel when you exhale, and golden light being pulled into your belly when you breathe in. Move your belly inward and outwardly with each breath. Feel the seed “Raṁ” strongly vibrating there with each breath. This is glory.

One minute.

In the next step, Start to straighten your body and pull your arms downwards, feel the muscles contract and fix your arms beside your body, feel tension and alertness. Start with a deep and slow bhastrikā. Move your belly intensely while doing so. When you finishes breathing perform ajagarī, hold the breath 5 – 10 seconds inside and then exhale contract the abdomen and hold the breath outside for another 5 – 10 seconds. Then release and feel the silence.

Breath deeply, then start with 5 – 30 times bhastrikā and finish with ajagarī.

Sūryanamaskāra

Sūrya is the sun, namaskāra a salutation. The sun is the carrier of wakefulness. When he sets, life sleeps. When he rises, so does life. Life is dynamic and energetic. Aliveness is associated with piṅgalā, the carrier of prāṇa. When one practices sūryanamaskāra, one should do this with aliveness, dynamism and boundless energy. One should not try to stretch but rather prefer to stay dynamic. The morning body needs first to melt in the sun before it can be stretched, so allow the sun to rise first. Perform this sūryanamaskāra with deep and loving breathing. Ensure that your eyes are following the movement of energy, not wandering around uncontrolled.

Perform 12–108 rounds.

Tāḍāsana

Palm tree pose. Interlace your fingers and turn your palms upwards over your head. Stretch up as far as you can and feel yourself balancing the sky on your palms. Breathe deeply, then stand on your toes and stretch even higher. Finally, breathe out and come to samāsthiti.

Practice for one minute with deep breathing.

Bhuja Vallī Kriyā

Strengthening the arms. From tāḍāsana lower your arms gently to raise your right arm to the sky. Your back is straight and the other arm is fixed and pointing downwards. Pull the muscles of your body and fix your posture.

Now start with a deep bhastrikā, move your belly then perform ajagarī and relax, change arms and do one more round.

5 – 30 times bhastrikā and ajagarī on each side.

Piṇḍala Śakti Kriyā

Strengthening the calves

Stand with your feet together and your fingers closed, your neck relaxed. Your gaze is clear and fixed at a point in front of you.

Inhale through the nose and lower your body to squatting pose, your knees remain closed, the heels on the ground and your arms stretched out in front of you. Go down as far you can and hold your breath inside a little.

Then elevate your body describe a full circle with your arms (downwards- behind-upwards),so that your fists come in front of chest with the elbows bend and parallel to the ground. Then exhale sharply, open then chest and push the elbows behind. – this is one full round, continue again by stretching out your arms.

5 – 30 times, do it with determination.

Pādahastāsana

Hands to feet pose. Move your arms to the sky and then gently bend forward, bending your knees. Place your fingers under your toes and your belly on your thighs. Breathe. Then gently stretch the knees while keeping your belly on the thighs. Breathe deeply.

Practice until you are completely relaxed.

Adho Mukha Śvānāsana

Downward facing dog. Come into Adho Mukha Śvānāsana, here the feet are hip-wide open and the body shall fully relax in strength.

Practice 5 – 30 times bhastrikā and ajagarī. Then, relax in advāsana.

In advāsana remember the fire – “Om Raṃ Ma”.

Santolāsana

Platform pose. Come into vajrāsana and relax in this posture if needed. Then, come forward, put your hands under your shoulders and move into the blank pose. Breathe deeply and then start to perform a deep bhastrikā, feel the heat. Perform ajagarī and in the end relax on your belly in advāsana.

5 – 30 times bhastrikā and ajagarī. Then, listen to the fire within – “Om Raṁ Ma”.

Bhujaṅgāsana

Cobra pose. Relax profoundly on the ground. From there, place your hands underneath your shoulders and move into bhujaṅgāsana. Stretch your arms first, then lower your pelvis to the ground, with your elbows at the chest. Focus on the backward bend. Feel the sky. Breathe deeply. To relax lay down on your belly and stretch your arms over you on the ground, palms facing downwards, this is advāsana.

5 – 10 deep breaths or bhastrikā and ajagarī, then relax into advāsana, then repeat the exercise one more time. When in advāsana, remember silently within or loud, the great fire – “Om Raṁ Ma”.

Dhanurāsana

Bow pose. Bring your feet to your buttocks, grasp your ankles and push your feet backwards. Elevate off the ground and focus on your central channel rising to the sky from the base to the top.

Pull mūlabandha.

5 – 10 deep breaths, or bhastrikā and ajagarī, then relax in advāsana. Repeat the exercise one more time. When in advāsana, think about the golden triangle in your belly – “Om Raṁ Ma”.

Naukāśana

Boat pose. Then move gently into parvatāsana and from there sit down. Stay until your body is calm. Then move into naukāśana. Hold as long as you can. When your muscles fail, simply return by hugging your legs. Continue once strength is regained.

5 – 10 deep breaths or bhastrikā and ajagarī, then relax in bījāsana by hugging your knees. Then repeat the exercise one more time. When in bījāsana, silent or loud – “Om Raṁ Ma”.

Kandharāsana.

Shoulder pose. Lay down. Bring your feet to your buttocks and hold your ankles with your hands. If you cannot grasp your ankles just interlace the hands behind your back. Come gently into kandharāsana.

Push the pelvis as far up as possible. Stay here and rise to the sky. To relax come down and hug your knees.

5 – 10 deep breaths, or bhastrikā and ajagarī. Relax by hugging your knees. Then repeat the exercise one more time. When hugging your knees, silent or loud – “Om Ram Ma”.

Cakrāsana

Wheel pose. Hug your knees at your chest and relax.

Then, place your hands beside your ears, and gently and slowly move up into cakrāsana according to your own capacity.

Sometimes it is enough to place the top of your head on the ground and move the pelvis as far up as possible.

Stay there, breathing deeply, for about 3 – 10 deep breaths. Then relax by hugging your knees again. Then remember proudly the fire within – “Om Ram Ma”.

Supta Pavanamuktāsana

Sleeping freeing the wind pose. Lay down and pull one knee to your chest while stretching out the other leg. When you breathe out, lift your head to your knee. When you breathe in, lower your head to the ground. Breathe deeply. Change legs after about one minute.

Then, bring both knees to the chest. Breathe in and out by lowering and raising your head in the same manner. Do so for another minute, then relax – silence.

Supta Udarakarśanāsana

Sleeping abdominal stretch pose. Lay on your back and interlace your fingers under your neck. Bring your closed knees up to the chest. Open your chest. Let your legs fall to the left and breathe deeply. This is the sleeping abdominal stretch pose.

After one minute, change sides and repeat. Relax in silence.

Śava Udarakarśanāsana

Universal spinal twist. Lay on your back, stretch your left leg, put your right foot over your left knee and let it rest on the leg. Take your left hand and place it on your right knee. Open your right hand to the right on the ground. Turn your head to the right. Look in your open palm. Rotate your leg to the left. Breathe deeply. This is the universal twist pose.

After one minute, change sides and repeat.

Uttānapādāsana

Flat boat pose. Close your feet, stretch your toes and activate the muscles of your legs, then turn your palms towards your body, straighten your arms and point with your fingers towards your toes. Then raise your legs 5 inches of the ground.

In this way gently move to uttānapādāsana once more.

Practice a deep breath, then start with a joyful bhastrikā, while moving the belly in and out. Look at your belly expand and contract, moving all the body. In the end perform ajagarī, hold and relax by lying down.

5 – 30 times bhastrikā and ajagarī, then relax and remember the fire that warms your center – “Oṃ Raṃ Ma”.

Ardha Matsyendrāsana

Half spinal twist. Come up sitting comfortably and first feel your center. Place the left leg over the right thigh, right foot on the left and left foot on the ground on the right side of your body

Hold your knee, open your chest gracefully and feel the beauty of this posture. When you can feel it, gently use your breath to rotate to the right. Breathe deeply and massage your intestines. Change sides. Stretching means letting go.

Perform this for one minute on each side, when you twist to the side, silently or aloud, remember the fire – “Om Raṁ Ma”.

Bhastrikā Prāṇāyāma

The bellows of the blacksmith. Remember – every inner movement must find balance in a dance with inner silence.

Bhastrikā prāṇāyāma is the bellows that fans the fire. It is an equally strong inhalation as exhalation. Bhastrikā is often mistaken with kapālabhāti, as it has a similar appearance. The crucial difference is, the previously mentioned equal strength of exhalation and inhalation. Bhastrikā brightens fire, awakens kuṇḍalinī and purifies the mind and body

Ida bhastrikā – Sit up straight, elevate your head and venerate your solar plexus, Close your right nostril and perform 5 – 30 times bhastrikā through your left nostril. In the end inhale, expand your belly as much as you can. Hold 5 – 30 seconds, then exhale deeply, pull your belly inwardly and upwardly and hold for another 5 – 30 and then inhale. This is ajagarī the panther. Take yourself time to relax then continue.

Madhya bhastrikā – Then perform 5 – 30 times madhya bhastrikā (central bellows breath) one last time in the center through both nostrils. Keep straight. In the end perform ajagarī, this will center the energy and give live to every pore of your being.

5 – 30 times bhastrikā and ajagarī on each side and in the center. Then, finally bring the hands in namaskāra mudrā and remember – “Om Raṁ Ma”.

Agnisāra Kriyā

Cleaning the digestive fire. Sit open-kneed in vajrāsana or in your preferred sitting posture. Empty the lungs of air like in uḍḍīyānabandha. Stick out your tongue and pump the diaphragm empty until you need to inhale. This motion is to be done fast and playful. Be completely empty-minded when performing this. It is mandatory to perform it gently and not to strain. If a headache occurs, stop immediately. When you cannot perform agnisāra kriyā comfortably, switch to svāna prāṇāyāma.

Perform agnisāra kriyā for two to five minutes.

Visualization & Bija Nyāsa

Sit in a meditation posture, relaxed, with your spine erect, envisioning a radiant fire arising from the center.

Imagine a glowing triangle, shining like the rising sun, positioned right in front of you. It's warm and full of glory, resembling molten gold. This triangle symbolizes fire, the primal teacher. Emerging from the muddy waters to the sky, it represents freedom and empowerment, endowing you with strength and the capacity to ultimately surrender to God.

As you inhale, let these warm rays of fire move into your belly, and as you exhale, let your breath flow back into the triangle, aglow like molten gold. Breathe deeply from the splendid maṇipūra.

Contemplate this warm flow of breath for some time.

Toward the end, envision the radiant Raṁ – embodying power, wisdom, self-establishment, glory, victory, and recognition of God – shining from within this molten gold. Chant “Oṁ Raṁ Ma”, silently or aloud, at least five times.

Finally, place the seed sounds. Sit in the meditation posture. Stretch out and fix your hands. Perform mūlabandha at the beginning of each sound. Perform your Bīja Nyāsa.

Lastly, perform namaskāra mudrā and breathe deeply.

Śavāsana

Corpse pose. Lay on the ground and surrender completely.

I am the light. I am the sunrise, I am eternal.

Without beginning, without end.
